Kane Company, P.C. provides investment advisory services for clients with a minimum of $100,000 in total household investment assets or those committed to a systematic savings plan of at least $1,000 per month.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Kane Company, P.C.'s investment management style primarily utilizes fundamental analysis and may have an impact on performance. Keeping investment fees low and investing tax efficiently are the top priorities of the investment strategy. Client portfolios will be managed using primarily passive vehicles, including the no-load institutional asset class mutual funds offered by Dimensional Fund Advisors (DFA). It is the advisor's belief that these provide the best investment option based on diversification, low cost, tax efficiency and the investment community's inability to consistently outperform with active management strategies. Once invested in DFA funds you may not be able to make additional investments if you terminate your agreement with us except through another advisor also authorized by DFA. Kane Company, P.C. does not use DFA funds exclusively and may use funds from other fund families, and on occasion exchanged traded funds or individual stocks, in client portfolios. All securities investments do involve a risk of loss and clients should read each prospectus carefully.

The basic investment strategies under which client investments will be managed include the following:
1. Modern Portfolio Theory, as recognized by the 1990 Nobel Prize, will be the philosophical foundation for how the portfolio will be structured and how subsequent decisions will be made. The underlying concepts of Modern Portfolio Theory include:
   - Investors are risk averse. The only acceptable risk is that which is adequately compensated by potential portfolio returns
   - Markets are efficient. It is virtually impossible to anticipate the future direction of the market as a whole or of any individual security. It is, therefore, unlikely that any portfolio will succeed in consistently "beating the market"
   - The design of the portfolio as a whole is more important than the selection of any particular security within the portfolio. The appropriate allocation of capital among asset classes (stocks, bonds, cash, etc.) will have far more influence on long-term portfolio results than the selection of individual securities. Investing for the long term (preferably longer than ten years) becomes critical to investment success because it allows the long-term characteristics of the asset classes to surface
   - For a given risk level, an optimal combination of asset classes will maximize returns. Diversification helps reduce investment volatility. The proportional mix of asset classes determines the long-term risk and return characteristics of the portfolio as a whole
   - Portfolio risk can be decreased by increasing diversification of the portfolio and by lowering the correlation of market behavior among the asset classes selected. (Correlation is the statistical term for the extent to which two asset classes move in tandem or opposition to one another)

2. Investing globally helps to minimize overall portfolio risk due to the imperfect correlation between economies of the world. Investing globally has also been shown historically to enhance portfolio returns, although there is no guarantee that it will do so in the future.

3. Equities offer the potential for higher long-term investment returns than cash or fixed income investments. Equities are also more volatile in their performance. Investors seeking higher rates of return must increase the proportion of equities in their portfolio, while at the same time accepting greater variation of results (including occasional substantial declines in value). Fixed income investments have their own risks including term risk and default risk.

4. Picking individual securities and timing the purchase or sale of investments in the attempt to "beat the market" are highly unlikely to increase long-term investment returns; they also can significantly increase portfolio operating costs. Such practices are, therefore, to be avoided. Kane Company, P.C. does not invest based on speculation or market timing. Individual stocks or bonds are generally not recommended, but certain exceptions may be made in cases where stocks or bonds were obtained before becoming a client or are requested by the client.

Given these strategies, the underlying approach to managing investments shall be to optimize the risk-return relationship appropriate to Investor's needs and goals in a tax efficient manner. The client portfolios will be diversified globally employing a variety of asset classes. Mutual funds or exchange-traded funds will be employed to implement the portfolio and the chosen asset classes will be periodically re-balanced to maintain a more consistent risk/reward profile.

Risk of Loss
Investments in mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, stocks, bonds, and any other financial security may lose substantial value and are not FDIC or SIPC insured.

Kane Company, P.C. has chosen TD Ameritrade for its ability to deliver quality execution and record keeping services, among other items. Should Kane Company, P.C. trade in securities in which we are uncomfortable with TD Ameritrade's ability to deliver best execution, Kane Company, P.C. will locate a more suitable broker using the factors outlined above.

TD Ameritrade and Dimensional Fund Advisors will provide research and software services as well as continuing education opportunities to Kane Company, P.C. in exchange for use of their platform and fund offerings. CPA PFS Personal Financial Specialist | CFP® | NAPFA THE POWER OF TRUST | Fee Only®

Certified Financial Planner, CFP® and federally registered CFP (with flame design) marks (collectively, the "CFP® marks") are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board"). The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 62,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States. To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements: complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning; pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination, administered in 10 hours over a two-day period, includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances; complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.
Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks: complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Certified Public Accountant (CPA) CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. In order to maintain a CPA license, states generally require the completion of 40 hours of continuing professional education (CPE) each year (or 80 hours over a two year period or 120 hours over a three year period). Additionally, all American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) members are required to follow a rigorous Code of Professional Conduct which requires that they act with integrity, objectivity, due care, competence, fully disclose any conflicts of interest (and obtain client consent if a conflict exists), maintain client confidentiality, disclose to the client any commission or referral fees, and serve the public interest when providing financial services.

Personal Financial Specialist (PFS) The PFS credential demonstrates that an individual has met the minimum education, experience and testing required of a CPA in addition to a minimum level of expertise in personal financial planning. To attain the PFS credential, a candidate must hold an unrevoked CPA license, fulfill 3,000 hours of personal financial planning business experience, complete 80 hours of personal financial planning CPE credits, pass a comprehensive financial planning exam and be an active member of the AICPA. A PFS credential holder is required to adhere to AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct, and is encouraged to follow AICPA's Statement on Responsibilities in Financial Planning Practice. To maintain their PFS credential, the recipient must complete 60 hours of financial planning CPE credits every three years. The PFS credential is administered through the AICPA.
